The mark of higher education isn't the knowledge you accumulate in your head. It's the skills you gain about how to learn." Adam Grant

I am greatly delighted that every edition of our newsletter is a manifestation, to the outside world, of our policies, strategies and activities geared towards successful collective future, echoing the thoughts of great authors and philosophers on education.

Hindustan Group of Institutions is a pioneer in promoting exchange of knowledge and research and equipping students with the skills required to meet the ever changing global market. Knowledge and skill acquisition is the only way to support development of every entity, from an individual to the world at large. We therefore empower learners with the skills, competencies and network needed and make an impact on future work through technology and science.

A well-educated workforce creates economic upturn and betters the quality of life around through innovation and entrepreneurship. Therefore, in addition to skilling, our group institutions focus on building entrepreneurs who can leverage their business acumen and creativity to create sustainable solutions that have a positive impact on society. Flipping through the pages of this newsletter, it is evident that all our community-driven development programmes in addition to providing development support to communities prepares our students to handle real world problems through their scientific mind and subsequently become socio impact entrepreneurs.

I appreciate the team of editors for the efforts taken to compile the information of the events organised across campuses for the academic year 2022- 2023. I also congratulate them for bringing out the "Flywheel" newsletter. I appreciate the heads of all institutions, various department heads, faculty, staff and students of our group institutions for keeping up their zeal in realising the vision and mission of their respective institutions culminating in translating the vision "To make every man a success and no man a failure"

College includes blood donation drives in the academic calendar

From relaxing attendance rules to offering extra credits, Guru Nanak College has come up with various incentives for its students to donate blood

The staff and students of Guru Nanak College in Velur have made a habit of donating blood. Twice a year - usually during the semester break in April and November - the management organises a mega blood donation drive on the campus. Every time this happens, a new group of donors are added to its database.

On November 10, the second such drive of the year took place with representatives of all major government blood banks, including IISc, IIT Madras and IIT Kharagpur, participating on the campus.

The auditorium and another hall above the canteen turned into a mini ward with paramedical staff setting up the various paraphernalia that go with blood donation.

Dr. Parag Kumar, assistant professor and head, Department of Bio-Cooperative, Secretaryship, and NCC Officer - Arvind, Guru Nanak College, says 3000 units of blood was collected from the day-long drive.

Dr. Parag Kumar says the drive is held in 2022-23, where 124 units were collected. During the two years of the pandemic, student donors were sent to hospitals to donate blood.

If Nedumarai, NSS programme officer of the college, says they expect the number of units to surpass those from the previous editions, but the women and the semi-final of KCG Men's T20 World Cup between India and England together played a spoilsport.

"But we had close to 50 NSS alumni coming forward to donate blood," he says.

Over the years, the college has adopted various measures to motivate youngsters to donate blood. NSS and NCC students of the college deserve much of the credit for leading these drives.

"Before a drive, announcements about it are made in the assembly. Class representatives are sent to inform one drive. The highest collection rate is from the drive held in 2022-23, where 124 units were collected. During the two years of the pandemic, student donors were sent to hospitals to donate blood.

"At the end of every semester, which include donating blood or taking part in any support service activity like sports, NSS, NCC and co-curricular activities.

"The drive is always conducted on a working day to draw in a good number of students to the venue. "We have more than 7000 students in the college. A majority of the first-year students are not eligible for blood donation and many women are unable to go ahead with the blood donation due to low haemoglobin count, but we do our best to create a culture of blood donation on the campus," says the NCC Officer.

Apart from the annual drive on the campus, students are sent whenever an emergency request for blood is received. "We maintain a database of students and their blood
